THE SITUATION.

Notwithstanding the fact that more than two weeks have passed since the Special to the RESURGICAN. Presidential election, it is not yet known which candidate carried a majority of the electors. The situation is so far changed that South Carolina's Tilden. -The Louisiana Returning Board will be watched by five prominent Democrats and an equal number of prominent Republicans. The country has confidence in all these men, and whatever they report will be considered as convincing. An amicable feeling now exists between the gentlemen representing the two parties in the the board of State canvassers from go city, as the letter published this morning indicate that all differences have frauds, and to confine its functions to been healed. The duties of these gen-They have no control over the Board, and the only reasons for their being may be conflicted opinions and asports. For the peace of the country we can only hope that the ten gentlemen present may be satisfied with the result, and make a report accordingly. -Derrick, Monday.

Little by little the opposing powers in Europe define their purposes, and we thus get some idea of the scope of the impending war, provided the several powers can limit themselves to the scope at present prescribed. Here is just where the uncertainty comes in. England proposes, for example to seize and hold Constantinople, in trust, as she claims, for the signatory powers. But who authorized her to do this? Will all the great powers submit to it? Then Russia may so succeed in the war as to attack Constantinople, and who can then say if the war will be confined to that limit? It is barely possible even yet, that the war may be averted, but not at all probable; and should it break forth, it now seems entirely probable that England and Russia will be the real combatants. Turkey is so completely bankrupt, that it seems morally impossible for her to continue the war for a cousiderable period. Yet the fighting qualities manifested by the Turks in the Servian war, show that they are not effete, and worthless as soldiers, as has been so generally claimed .-Pittsburgh Gazette.

from the St. Petersburg correspondence published in yesterday's Derrick. We reproduce it because extracts from the Record were published in this county during the canvass:

Harry White, the Republican candidate for Congress in this district, was elected by a majority of 1,759, which is more than three times the majority of Jenks in 1874. Had there been ten by the editor of that paper against the reputation of Mr. White and pubriety of initials, "W. C.," "T. C.,"
